FAS 32: Specialized Accounting and Reporting Principles and Practices in AICPA Statements of Position and Guides on Accounting and Auditing Matters

an amendment of APB Opinion No. 20

FAS 32 Summary

The Board has agreed to exercise responsibility for the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in the AICPA Statements of Position and Guides on accounting and auditing matters by extracting those specialized principles and practices from those documents and issuing them as FASB Statements, after appropriate due process. This has created uncertainty regarding the ongoing status of those specialized principles and practices. This Statement specifies that the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices contained in the AICPA Statements of Position and Guides on accounting and auditing matters designated herein are preferable accounting principles for purposes of justifying a change in accounting principles as required by APB Opinion No. 20, Accounting Changes.

INTRODUCTION AND BACKGROUND INFORMATION

1. On November 7, 1978, the FASB issued a Request for Written Comments on an FASB Proposal for Dealing with Industry Accounting Matters and Accounting Questions of Limited Application (Proposal) that outlined proposed procedures for the Board to adopt the AICPA Statements of Position (SOPs) and Guides on accounting and auditing matters as FASB Statements and thereafter to exercise responsibility for amending and interpreting them. One hundred fifty-seven letters of comment were received on the Proposal. Some respondents expressed concern that the status and authority of the SOPs and Guides would be weakened by the Board's decision to begin due process proceedings toward issuing final FASB Statements concerning the accounting and reporting principles and practices in those SOPs and Guides. Their concern centered on the possibility that the accounting principles in those documents would not be followed pending release of final FASB Statements.

2. At its meetings on March 22 and April 26, 1979, the Board agreed to exercise responsibility for all the specialized ¹ accounting and reporting principles and practices in the existing AICPA SOPs and Guides by extracting those specialized principles and practices from the SOPs and Guides and issuing them as FASB Statements, after appropriate due process. As explained in paragraph 8, the Board deferred similar action with regard to those specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices contained in the Industry Audit Guide, Audits of State and Local Governmental Units, and the two SOPs (75-3 and 77-2) that supplement that Guide.

3. The Board has considered respondents' concerns about the uncertainty regarding the status of the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in the SOPs and Guides and decided to clarify the ongoing status of those specialized principles and practices. The Board considers those specialized principles and practices in the SOPs and Guides listed in Appendix A to be preferable accounting principles for purposes of applying APB Opinion No. 20, Accounting Changes.

4. The Board also noted that four Guides and one SOP do not contain any specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices. The Guides, The Auditor's Study and Evaluation of Internal Control in EDP Systems (1977), Audits of Service-Center-Produced Records (1974), Computer Assisted Audit Techniques (1979), and Medicare Audit Guide (1969), relate solely to auditing procedures. SOP 75-4, Presentation and Disclosure of Financial Forecasts, relates to supplemental financial information that is not now required to be disclosed and is not part of basic historical financial statements prepared in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles. Accordingly, this Statement does not apply to those Guides and the SOP. In addition, the Board noted that the AICPA Auditing Standards Division has published four auditing SOPs that do not contain any specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices and, accordingly, are excluded from Appendix A.

5. An Exposure Draft of a proposed Statement on Specialized Accounting and Reporting Principles and Practices in AICPA Industry Accounting Guides, Industry Audit Guides, and Statements of Position was issued on June 1, 1979. The Board received 53 letters of comment in response to the Exposure Draft.

6. Several respondents expressed concern that without proper due process the Board was designating the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in those Guides and SOPs as standards covered by Rule 203 of the AICPA's Rules of Conduct, which explains the authority of FASB pronouncements. Such designation would have required enterprises to conform with those specialized principles and practices, a requirement that respondents noted was in conflict with paragraph 3 of the Exposure Draft, which stated that "this Statement does not require any enterprise to change the accounting principles it currently uses to those specified in the Guides and SOPs." The Board was not implying that the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in the Guides and SOPs are now standards covered by Rule 203; rather, the Board was acknowledging that those specialized principles and practices were encompassed in the conventions, rules, and procedures referred to as "generally accepted accounting principles." This Statement has been modified to clarify that point.

7. Several respondents noted that the Exposure Draft did not address the preferability of the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in the SOPs and Guides with respect to the initial adoption of an accounting principle. They recommended that the Board require enterprises to follow those specialized principles and practices upon initial adoption. The Board believes it should not take any position with respect to initial adoption prior to completion of appropriate due process on the specialized principles and practices.

8. The Board defers action with respect to exercising responsibility for the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices in the Guide on state and local government accounting and the two related SOPs. In so doing, the Board notes that at the present time the accounting and reporting by such governmental units is addressed by the National Council on Governmental Accounting (NCGA) and the AICPA. The Board also notes that discussions are being held with interested parties, including the NCGA and AICPA, as to what the appropriate structure for accounting standard setting for such governmental units should be. Until the matter is resolved, the FASB is proposing no changes with respect to its involvement with pronouncements in that area and, accordingly, is omitting that Guide and related SOPs from Appendix A. However, some respondents have objected to this omission because they were concerned that it may create the impression that the specialized principles and practices in those documents would not be considered as generally accepted accounting principles. In deferring action with respect to state and local government accounting, the Board emphasizes that it does not intend to change the status or discourage the use of the Guide and SOPs on those matters.

9. The Accounting Standards Executive Committee (AcSEC) of the AICPA has a limited number of projects in process that it expects will result in the issuance of SOPs or Guide revisions within approximately a year. Those projects are listed in Appendix B. In addition, the Board may request AcSEC to undertake issuance of an SOP or Guide during the period prior to the extraction of the specialized accounting and reporting principles and practices from the SOPs and Guides and the issuance of them in FASB Statements. The Board plans to review any specialized principles and practices contained in any such SOPs and Guides before issuance and, if the Board finds them acceptable, it will, after appropriate due process, issue Interpretations of this Statement announcing that they are preferable accounting principles for purposes of applying Opinion 20.
